New York, April 18.—The stock market was omewhat unsettled throughout most of the day,

New York, April 18.—The stock market was somewhat unsettied throughout most of the day, and while fluctuations were small and unimportant a few stocks displayed marked weakness. The offer of the Treasury Department to buy bonds caused a rush to cover in the early morning and the market was for a short time quite strong, but the selling by foreignors soon neutralized this induence and traders started in to sell the list, finally wiping out most of the timporovement. Kaosas and Texas was the first object of their attack, and the story that a receiver was soon to be expointed for the road was industriously circulated, the effect of which was to depress its prices by per cent, and even after the rumor received official donial there was not strength in it to reily more than 8 per cent. Missouri Pacific followed with a marked decline for no reason that could be seen, and the buillish feeling of the opening entirely disappeared. Norfolk and Western proferred next took up the decline, and the general belief was that it was on selling by East Tennessee people, who would now send all their business over the Richmond and West Point. The last-mentioned stock, however, gave no indication that it was affected by the story. There was a spurt in conters toward the end of the day, but its effect was lest before the close. Fluctuations were confined to the harrowest limits in most of the list. The close was barely steady. Total sales, 33,000 shares.
